“ When I think of my Grandma Jones I'll always remember spending time at her house in Renick mowing the grass and learning about the different vegetables in the garden.

She had a passion for yard sales and as a child running around with her trying to find the deal of a lifetime left me with a sense curiosity and adventure. Almost as if we were going on a treasure hunt.

And it was always a treat watching Scooby-Doo and sleeping on the couch with a belly full of pancakes before getting sent off to school from her house in the morning.

Grandma Jones, I hope you knew how much you meant to me. You will live on in my memories and heart.

Love you forever, Justin Brown

“ I already miss my momma terribly there's a big piece of me missing she was my best friend and my security it still feels like I'm in a dream, i was woken up from the deep sleep i was in to the words i will never get out of my head " Cindy your mommas gone" My sadness is not from selflessness or from being mad at God for taking my mother it's only from how much i miss her and i didn't want to let go but she told me she was tired and it was time to go and that's when i realized i was being selfish so i had to except the fact i had to let go....but it still hurts in my heart so much!!!!
