“ My Dad took me to Paint the Town a few years back and all of a sudden Dad started dancing in front of total strangers. ....I proudly stood up and joined him and we danced for all to see without a care of what anyone thought. I will cherish that memory always.

“ Rest in peace Bobby. I knew Bob since I was a small child. Our families were the best of friends. I remember being at Speck and Mildred's one night for dinner, and Bobby had just gotten a flat top haircut. I kept going up behind him and rubbing the top of his head. It was making him so mad. I just kept doing it throughout the night, being a little pest and finally Mildred said, you better quit now--he's getting red in the face and that's not good. My brother Fred and Bobby were very good close friends and Fred would call him Big Red. They had a lot of fun in the early days. May they both rest in peace. The family has my deepest sympathy.
